Florida Atlantic University Poll: Clinton and Trump Poised to win Florida; Cruz and Rubio in Battle for Second.

A new Florida Atlantic University statewide poll has GOP front runner Donald Trump surging with the support of 44% of likely Republican primary voters, and an overall 23 point lead on his closest competitors Ted Cruz and Marco Rubio who are statistically tied at 21%. John Kasich is at 9% and 5% of GOP voters are undecided. On the Democratic side, Hillary Clinton maintains a healthy 28 point lead over Bernie Sanders (59% to 31%), but their overall race has tightened 16 points since November and September when Clinton held a 44 point lead. This poll was conducted between March 8-11, 2016.

	Sept 2015	Nov 2015	Jan 2016	March 2016
Trump	32%	36%	48%	44%
Rubio	19%	18%	11%	21%
Cruz	6%	10%	16%	21%

Trump has extended his lead since September from 13 to 23 points but has seen a recent drop of four points since January. Ted Cruz has seen his share of support steadily increase from 6% in September to 21%. Marco Rubio has stayed steady since September increasing from 19% to 21% today.

	Sept 2015	Nov 2015	Jan 2016	March 2016
Bernie Sanders	15%	22%	26%	31%
Hillary Clinton	60%	66%	62%	59%

Driving Clinton’s dominance is her favorability among Democrat primary voters at 84%, and 12% unfavorable. Sanders has a 55% favorable and 33% unfavorable ranking. Clinton’s popularity is also confirmed by her supporters’ loyalty with 69% of those who held a favorable opinion of Clinton saying they will vote for her, while 55% of those who held a favorable opinion of Bernie said they would vote for him.

Sanders has cut into Clintons 45 point lead since September which is now down to 28 points. However, Clinton still holds solid leads among women (63% to 24%) and among men (54% to 38%). It appears Sanders did better with early voting, losing 50% to 37% but Clinton appears to extend her lead with Election Day voter 62% to 25%. Bernie holds a strong lead among those 18-34 with 63% support, versus 24% for Clinton, but Clinton wins the other age groups with over 70% support collectively, compared to about 20% support for Sanders.

Clinton holds a 20 point lead among whites (58% to 38%), but extends 75% to 18% among African Americans, and 75% to 6% among Hispanics. Clinton holds sizeable leads throughout the state but is strongest in the south with 65% support. There was a slight tightening in the polling data on Friday with Clinton holding only a 45% to 39% lead but the previous three days saw Clinton hold steady at 62% to 67% range.

Among likely GOP primary voters, John Kasich holds this highest favorability rating at 60%, but finds himself last in the polls. Trump is at 56%, which is down from his high of 70% in January. Rubio maintains a positive rating (48% to 45%) but this 3 point difference stands in stark contrast to his +36 in January. Cruz finds himself under water at 44% favorable and 49% unfavorable.

GOP PRIMARY VOTERS	Favorable	Unfavorable	Difference	Jan Difference
Kasich	60%	28%	+32	(not asked)
Rubio	48%	45%	+3	+36
Trump	56%	41%	+15	+46
Cruz	44%	49%	+5	+26

Trump's supporters appear to be very loyal with 76% of those who said they have a favorable impression of the Real-Estate mogul saying they would vote for him, while 42% of Rubio supporters said they will vote for him. Ted Cruz has slightly higher loyalty than Rubio with 44% of those who have a favorable opinion saying they will vote for Cruz, while Kasich has the least loyalty with 14% of supporters saying they will vote for him.

Trump leads in the GOP primary among Caucasians with 43% and Hispanics at 37%. Rubio has seen his support among Hispanics rebound from a January drop of 19 points from 34% to 15% back up to 35%.

	White/ Caucasian Nov. 2015	White/ Caucasian Jan. 2016	White/ Caucasian March 2016	Hispanic/ Latino Nov. 2015	Hispanic/ Latino Jan. 2016	Hispanic/ Latino March 2016
Ted Cruz	10.8%	13.8%	21.7%	6.4%	10.2%	20.5%
Marco Rubio	16.3%	12.5%	20.3%	34.0%	15.1%	34.5%
Donald Trump	39.0%	48.1%	42.5%	19.1%	54%	36.9%
John Kasich	3.6%	1.2%	10.2%	4.3%	0.0%	8.1%
Undecided	2.0%	1.3%	5%	0.0%	1.3%	0%

Trump has stronger support among male GOP voters with 52%, compared with 37% of female voters. Early voting shows a tie between Rubio and Cruz at 22% while Trump leads with 43%, this same pattern holds for those expecting to vote on election day.

Cruz leads among those 18-34 with 34% of the vote followed by Trump at 32% and Rubio at 29%. Trump extends his leads among the remaining age groups with 43% of 35-54 year olds, 49% of 55-74 and 46% of those over 75.

Trump is expected to win throughout the state; He leads 46% to 27% to 14% over Cruz and Rubio in the North; 47% to 21% to 20% over Rubio and Cruz in the central region and; 40% to 27% to 16% in the south over Rubio and Cruz. Rubio will need a strong GOTV in the south to hold off Cruz's advantage in the North.

The most important issue for GOP primary voters is dissatisfaction with the Government at 42% and followed by the economy at 17%. On the Democratic side, the most important issue was the economy at 38% and followed by dissatisfaction with the Government at 19%.

President Obama's decision to close Guantanamo Bay in Cuba is widely supported by Democrat primary voters with 53% strongly supporting closure while 16% disagreed with the decision. Conversely among GOP voters only 9% strongly supported closure while 82% opposed the decision.

The Florida Atlantic University poll was conducted from Tuesday March 8 at 6pm, through Friday evening March 12, 2016. The polling sample was a random selection of registered voters purchased through Aristotle Inc. Likely primary voters were classified through a screening question. For non-completes with a working residential phone line, at least five callbacks were attempted (Friday afternoon, Friday evening, Saturday afternoon, Sunday afternoon, Sunday evening and Monday morning). The Democratic and GOP Presidential primaries consisted of 414 and 852 adult registered likely primary voters in Florida, with a margin of error of +/-4.8 percent and +/- 3.3 percent respectively, at a 95 percent confidence level. Data was collected using an Interactive Voice Response system and weighted based on race, age, gender and region to reflect likely voter populations in Florida. The full methodology and results can be found at <http://business.fau.edu/departments/economics/business-economics-polling/bepi-polls/index.aspx#.VuRvquahvug>

Below are the full results and survey instrument. For further information or questions about methodology, contact Dr. Monica Escaleras, FAU-BEPI director and FAU assistant professor of economics, at mescaler@fau.edu.
