National FAU Poll Shows Hispanics Divided Along Party Lines in Their Opinions on Economic Outlook and Personal Finances

Published: Jan 11, 2017 7:56 am ET

For millennials who want to be millionaires, there is a need for diversity in financial planning. The recent report by the Florida Atlantic University Business and Economics Polling Initiative (BEP) shows that Hispanic millennials are divided along party lines in their opinions on the economic outlook and personal finances.

The report, titled "Hispanic millennials and their financial future: A look at how Hispanic millennials are divided along party lines in their opinions on the economic outlook and personal finances," was jointly conducted by the FAU Business and Economics Polling Initiative (BEP) and the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce of Florida (HCCF).

The survey was conducted online among 1,000 Hispanic millennials between November 15 and December 15, 2016. The results are based on a sample size that is representative of the Hispanic population of the United States.

The report found that Hispanic millennials are divided along party lines in their opinions on the economic outlook and personal finances. While 51% of Hispanic millennials who identify as Democrats believe that the economy will improve in the next year, only 36% of Hispanic millennials who identify as Republicans share this belief.

In terms of personal finances, 49% of Hispanic millennials who identify as Democrats believe that they will have enough money to save for retirement in the next year, compared to only 34% of Hispanic millennials who identify as Republicans.

The report concludes that Hispanic millennials are divided along party lines in their opinions on the economic outlook and personal finances, and that more research is needed to understand the factors that drive these differences.

For more information, visit www.hispanicmillennials.com.

Sponsored by

The MarketWatch Network, Inc.

The MarketWatch Network, Inc. is not involved in the creation of the content.

SPONSORED RESULTS

1. High Yield Savings Accounts & The Best Gold ETFs
2. Best Money Today & Best Indexed Funds
3. Gold ETF Funds & T. Rowe Price BSVs
4. 10 Best Mutual Funds & High Yield Investments

SPONSORED HEADLINES

The MarketWatch Network, Inc. does not endorse the products or services of any company featured in our sponsored headlines.

COPYRIGHT @ 2017. NN Inc. All rights reserved.

The MarketWatch Network, Inc. is not involved in the creation of the content.