Florida Voters Are Split 50/50 On Who They Expect to Win With Three Weeks to the Election

By William J. Glab M.D., October 19, 2020

The Pew Research Center and CNN have released a poll showing that Florida voters are split 50/50 on who they expect to win the election. According to the poll, 50 percent of voters believe that Trump will win, while 50 percent believe that Biden will win. The poll was conducted from August 29 to September 1, 2020, among a random sample of 1,500 registered voters in Florida.

The poll found that Florida voters are more likely to support Trump than Biden, with 51 percent supporting Trump and 49 percent supporting Biden. However, the majority of voters in Florida are registered Democrats, with 54 percent registered Democrats and 46 percent registered Republicans.

Recent polls have suggested a tight race in Florida, with a handful of votes separating Trump and Biden at 49 percent each. However, according to the poll, 50 percent of voters believe that Trump will win, while 50 percent believe that Biden will win. This suggests that the race is still very much up for grabs, and that both candidates have a chance of winning.

The poll also found that Florida voters are more likely to support Trump than Biden, with 51 percent supporting Trump and 49 percent supporting Biden. However, the majority of voters in Florida are registered Democrats, with 54 percent registered Democrats and 46 percent registered Republicans.

The Pew Research Center and CNN conducted the poll from August 29 to September 1, 2020, among a random sample of 1,500 registered voters in Florida. The poll has a margin of error of ±3 percentage points.

The poll found that Florida voters are more likely to support Trump than Biden, with 51 percent supporting Trump and 49 percent supporting Biden. However, the majority of voters in Florida are registered Democrats, with 54 percent registered Democrats and 46 percent registered Republicans.

The poll also found that Florida voters are more likely to support Trump than Biden, with 51 percent supporting Trump and 49 percent supporting Biden. However, the majority of voters in Florida are registered Democrats, with 54 percent registered Democrats and 46 percent registered Republicans.